Our food is prepared with all of us in mind. Often we select “in season” foods from local suppliers to bring to the table not only the freshest and most cost-effective produce, but also to support our local economy. We care deeply about each menu item you may select; binding flavors and textures in a series of events that produce a whole taste experience. We would truly, (no really) like to hear from you - mostly good things, but we will listen to any other things you may have to share, (although you may have to follow us around if you get long-winded, we are very busy preparing your lunch!) We love our food (literally, we put our love in it) and we hope you will too. Thank you for coming in and spreading your sunshine!
